Justification for Mandatory Pre-Bid Meeting Participation:

i.

Ensure Technical Clarity and Compliance

The project involves highly specialized machinery with integrated installation and operational requirements. A pre-bid meeting ensures that bidders fully understand the scope, technical specifications, site conditions, and compliance requirements, thereby reducing the risk of non-compliant or technically invalid bids.

ii.

Promote Serious and Qualified Participation

Mandatory attendance filters out casual or unqualified bidders and ensures only serious, technically competent participants engage in the bidding process. This improves bid quality and reduces unnecessary administrative burden during evaluation.

iii.

Facilitate Site Familiarization and Query Resolution

For turnkey setups, understanding of layout, utilities, and installation constraints is critical. The pre-bid meeting provides an opportunity to visit or understand the site and clarify doubts in a structured forum.

Uniformity of Information and Clarifications

All prospective bidders receive the same inputs, clarifications, and updates during the meeting. This maintains transparency and ensures fair competition, avoiding post-bid disputes or claims of information asymmetry.

Enable Risk Mitigation for the Buyer

Engaging with bidders before submission allows the procuring authority to gauge market readiness, identify potential risks, and fine-tune technical specifications, timelines, or commercial conditions, ensuring smoother procurement execution.

vi.

GeM Compliance and Documentation

Uploading the signed attendance register and meeting minutes on GeM ensures auditability and compliance with procurement norms. It also serves as documentary evidence in case of disputes or complaints during or after evaluation.

Justification for Manufacturing Year of Machinery / Equipment Restriction:

i.

To ensure supply of latest technology and components – Restricting to recent manufacturing ensures the machinery includes up-to-date technology, performance features, and energy efficiency standards.

ii.

To avoid outdated or obsolete models – Machines manufactured more than two years ago may have limited spares, reduced manufacturer support, or be incompatible with current systems.

iii.

To maximize equipment lifecycle and utility – Newer equipment offers a longer usable life, reducing maintenance issues and ensuring long-term functionality.

iv.

To protect against refurbished or shelf-damaged stock – This condition prevents the supply of previously stored or cosmetically altered units under the guise of new equipment.

Justification for Pre-Dispatch Inspection Requirement:

i.

To ensure quality and specification compliance – This measure helps confirm that the equipment being supplied strictly matches the specifications, features, and build quality approved in the tender.

ii.

To prevent substandard or substituted supply – Physical inspection acts as a safeguard against delivery of outdated, refurbished, or non-compliant machinery.

iii.

To verify functionality and readiness before dispatch – For turnkey and critical machinery, testing at the pre-dispatch stage helps minimize post-delivery technical issues and delays.

To protect public funds and project timelines – Since this procurement is funded through Government Grant-in-Aid, quality assurance through inspection ensures value-for-money and timely implementation.

| Check points during Acceptance of Supplies                                          | Before generating the Consignee Receipt and Acceptance Certificate (CRAC), the consignee may inspect the system condition and verify that it complies with the agreed specifications and configurations. In the case of a large number of units to be procured, then the buyer may opt for bidding and accordingly stipulate conditions regarding installation, inspection by consignees/inspection agency. Consignees who receive the supplies should be vigilant and should complete checking to ensure that there is no scope for the supply of refurbished products. At the time of receiving supplies, the consignee may adhere to the following to ensure that any discrepancies in supplies can be flagged, taken into account, and reflected while generating the CRAC: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>i. Packing should be checked properly</li> <li>ii. A warranty certificate from the OEM should be insisted upon and checked.</li> <li>iii. Instruction manuals and the OS installed should be checked.</li> <li>iv. The machine serial number should also be checked through settings and can be verified from the OEM website. The above points are for guidance, and the buyer/consignee may take steps considered suitable by them for checking at the consignee end before acceptance of systems.</li> <li>v. An escalation matrix for customer grievance redressal shall be insisted upon by the buyer from the seller at the time of delivery.</li> </ol> |

| 9  | Check points during Acceptance of Supplies                                          | Before generating the Consignee Receipt and Acceptance Certificate (CRAC), the consignee may inspect the system condition and verify that it complies with the agreed specifications and configurations. In the case of a large number of units to be procured, then the buyer may opt for bidding and accordingly stipulate conditions regarding installation, inspection by consignees/inspection agency. Consignees who receive the supplies should be vigilant and should complete checking to ensure that there is no scope for the supply of refurbished products. At the time of receiving supplies, the consignee may adhere to the following to ensure that any discrepancies in supplies can be flagged, taken into account, and reflected while generating the CRAC: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>i. Packing should be checked properly</li> <li>ii. A warranty certificate from the OEM should be insisted upon and checked.</li> <li>iii. Instruction manuals and the OS installed should be checked.</li> <li>iv. The machine serial number should also be checked through settings and can be verified from the OEM website. The above points are for guidance, and the buyer/consignee may take steps considered suitable by them for checking at the consignee end before acceptance of systems.</li> <li>v. An escalation matrix for customer grievance redressal shall be insisted upon by the buyer from the seller at the time of delivery.</li> </ul>                                                                                                                                                        |

| 5 | Scope of Installation   | Installation requirements shall be indicated in the bid by the buyer under the Installation, Commissioning and Testing in Bid (ICT) clause. In case installation is specified in the bid, it shall be the responsibility of the seller to ensure that all systems are installed and satisfactory working is shown to the consignee or authorized representative of the buyer. However, in case of Direct and L1 Purchase, installation of the computer system by the seller/OEM is mandatory. Installation does not include the supply of antivirus, MS Office, etc., which are to be separately procured by the buyer only.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

| 6  | Buyer/Consignee Obligations relating to installation                                | It is necessary that the buyer/consignee provide the seller or authorized representative access to locations, areas, or rooms for the installation of equipment. The seller or authorized representative will install systems and connect them to existing power lines/networking at no additional charge. The buyer/consignee will be responsible for electrical wiring, networking, or any other work connected to the installation area. The seller shall be only responsible for ensuring the setup of the desktop systems, configuring, etc., as well as loading software etc. (to be provided by the buyer/consignee). Any other site preparation required before installation and connection of the desktop shall be the responsibility of the buyer/consignee. The buyer/consignee, if required, will provide space at the installation site for the safe storage of tools, test equipment, and other materials used for installation at no charge. In case there is a requirement of obtaining an entry pass for allowing representatives to the premises, the same shall be arranged by the consignee. Similarly, if there is a requirement of a gate pass for bringing items required for installation, the same is to be arranged by the consignee. In scenarios where multiple location installations are required, the buyer must indicate complete installation addresses in the bid document. In the case of other modes of purchase, as soon as the order is placed, complete details regarding installation may be informed to the seller. This ensures smooth coordination and delivery of products to the respective locations. |

| 9  | Check points during Acceptance of Supplies                                          | Before generating the Consignee Receipt and Acceptance Certificate (CRAC), the consignee may inspect the system condition and verify that it complies with the agreed specifications and configurations. In the case of a large number of units to be procured, then the buyer may opt for bidding and accordingly stipulate conditions regarding installation, inspection by consignees/inspection agency. Consignees who receive the supplies should be vigilant and should complete checking to ensure that there is no scope for the supply of refurbished products. At the time of receiving supplies, the consignee may adhere to the following to ensure that any discrepancies in supplies can be flagged, taken into account, and reflected while generating the CRAC: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>i. Packing should be checked properly</li> <li>ii. A warranty certificate from the OEM should be insisted upon and checked.</li> <li>iii. Instruction manuals and the OS installed should be checked.</li> <li>iv. The machine serial number should also be checked through settings and can be verified from the OEM website. The above points are for guidance, and the buyer/consignee may take steps considered suitable by them for checking at the consignee end before acceptance of systems.</li> <li>v. An escalation matrix for customer grievance redressal shall be insisted upon by the buyer from the seller at the time of delivery.</li> </ul>                                                                                                                                                               |
